

Title: Argentina anti-dumping solar glass

Generated on: 2026-04-23 12:31:25

Copyright (C) 2026 EU-BESS. All rights reserved.

---

Will Argentina change its anti-dumping system?

REUTERS/Agustin Marcarian/File Photo Purchase Licensing Rights Jan 15 (Reuters) - Argentina will roll out changes to the country's anti-dumping system in an effort to promote greater competition and bring down prices, Economy Minister Luis Caputo said on social media on Wednesday.

What are Argentina's anti-dumping reforms?

Argentina narrows the duration of anti-dumping duties to promote a more competitive market. Reforms target increased transparency and a balanced foreign trade atmosphere. Efforts are aligned with President Milei's agenda to reduce state intervention and combat inflation.

How will Argentina's anti-dumping duties affect US markets?

Get a look at the day ahead in U.S. and global markets with the Morning Bid U.S. newsletter. Sign up here. According to the official, Argentina's current provisions for anti-dumping duties, intended to prevent unfair competition between imported and domestic goods, have increased consumer prices and industrial costs.

What will the government do with anti-dumping reform?

Both institutions will contribute with assessments that consider the public interest and consumer rights, as well as the impact on value chains. With this reform, the Government seeks to foster competition, restore the original function of anti-dumping duties and promote more transparent and balanced foreign trade.

The Decree 33/2025, published in the Official Gazette on January 16th, 2025, establishes significant modifications to the antidumping system in Argentina, aiming to ...

The objective is to consider, at the time of the investigation, the interests of consumers and the effects that the imposition of anti ...

On Wednesday (15), Argentina is set to reform its anti-dumping system to promote greater competition and reduce prices, Economy Minister Luis Caputo announced on social media.

In a move to bolster competition and reduce prices, Argentina is set to implement vital changes to its anti-dumping regulations.

With this reform, the Government seeks to foster competition, restore the original function of anti-dumping duties and promote more transparent and balanced foreign trade. ...

Argentina will roll out changes to the country's anti-dumping system in an effort to promote greater competition and bring down prices, Economy Minister Luis Caputo said on ...

Argentina is set to implement significant changes to its anti-dumping system to promote competition and lower prices, as Economy Minister Luis Caputo highlighted on social ...

Argentina's new Decree 33/2025 updates regulations on safeguards, antidumping, and countervailing duties, streamlining ...

Argentina will soon implement changes to its anti-dumping system as part of an effort to encourage competition and reduce prices. Economy Minister Luis Caputo announced ...

Argentina will roll out changes to the country's anti-dumping system in an effort to promote greater competition and bring down prices, ...

Argentina will soon implement changes to its anti-dumping system as part of an effort to encourage competition and reduce prices. ...

Argentina's new Decree 33/2025 updates regulations on safeguards, antidumping, and countervailing duties, streamlining processes for these trade measures.

Web: <https://www.legalandprivacy.eu>

